HISTORY

The Alain White Road of yesteryear housed some of the most illustrious families in the 1770's. The Seth Bird House was built in 1775 by Dr. Bird and his family, an eccentric but respected practitioner, fond of ardent spirits and always prepared when seeing his patients by dragging a coffin behind his horse and buggy. ✱ Over the years, many families lived within these walls, including, at turn of the century, a popular seamstress by the name of Ellen Gamon who supplemented her income by taking in lodgers and feeding them from her dairy herd and vegetable garden—the residence's first foray into gentle hospitality. ✱ The Smith family bought the house in 1948 and soon after renamed it Win-Vian, the combination of the first names of Winthrop and his wife Vivian. For years, sheep, Hereford cattle, horses, pigs and pheasants were raised on the farm. Today, Winvian's spa is located on the site of the pigpens—with quite a different type of mud treatments.

In 1949, Win and Vivian had a son, Win Jr., who was brought directly from the hospital in New York to Winvian. Win Jr.'s father died 12 years later and Vivian married an old childhood sweetheart, Admiral Charles McVay, who had been the Captain of the USS Indianapolis. McVay's and the Indianapolis' tragic and fascinating story is detailed in the riveting book "In Harm's Way" and it can be found in today's Seth Bird Library.

★ Today, this grand home remains in the Smith family, lovingly restored by mother-daughter team Maggie and Heather Smith, and made into an unconventional and extraordinary getaway. Son Win Smith III later joined the team to focus on business development.

DINING

Each dining area is dramatic in contrast and each is designed to harmonize with the cuisine created to suit that space—breakfast on the sunny Terrace, tasting menus in the Private Dining Room, light snacks in the casual Solarium to name a few. The Seth Bird House and The Smith Ell are freely accessible to all of Winvian’s guests, whether to play some games, sit by the fire with a hot toddy or chat with like minded souls.

THE GARDENS

Winvian believes that nothing compares to the experience of professionally prepared cuisine with ingredients that may very well have come from the garden to the table a few hours earlier. It is to this end that Winvian goes to the time and expense of organically cultivating a hotel garden and why you should experience it for yourself.

COTTAGES

Fifteen architects have designed 18 individual cottages and one suite that combine the whimsical with the traditional. Each has enough surprises to lure and charm without detracting from the views, the surrounding nature and the comforts that allow guests to simply disappear. A sampling:

Beaver Lodge A refuge in the woods by the side of a pond that is intricate and utterly original. A real Beaver Lodge cocoons you in an aura of wonder, deep tranquility and comfort with the elements of the outside extended indoors—wood, pebbles, the glow of a fire and a look-out nook.

Camping The arched ceiling mimics the vault of the sky: blue in the daytime, stars at night. Forest murals grace the walls, and huge windows showcase the real Connecticut woods outside. Two wood-burning fireplaces—one indoors, one out complete the sublime and rustic luxury of Camping.

GREENHOUSE

Connecticut Yankee Based on Mark Twain's Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court, this cozy medieval cottage is rich with warm colors, a herringbone fireplace, exposed beams and a bed fit for...a king. The bathroom features imposing granite slabs reminiscent of Stonehenge. The steam shower also boasts twin ceiling mounted rain shower heads with individual controls.

Helicopter Amenities do not get more thrilling than this: a 17,000 pound meticulously restored 1968 Sikorsky Sea King Pelican HH3F awaits your arrival in this cottage that resembles a hangar. Climb into the cockpit for a "flight of fancy", enjoy a drink in the fuselage or cozy up by the wood burning stove.

THE LITCHFIELD HILLS

Location, location, location. Luckily we have all three. Tucked away in the idyllic north-west corner of Connecticut and just over two hours from the hustle and bustle of New York City or Boston, Winvian is set in 113 acres of nature. Surrounding us and directly accessible from our grounds is the 4000-acre White Memorial Foundation, where trails abound for hiking, biking, horseback riding, snowshoeing, and cross-country skiing. Get wet fishing on the Housatonic River, canoeing on the Bantam River and boating on Bantam Lake. Bike around the area during our fair summers, go for a walk and kick the glorious leaves of fall, be active in the pristine winter snow, wake up and, for once, literally smell the roses in the spring. We are here to make your getaway extraordinary and we look forward to welcoming you.
